

We at ICED(AI) are deeply disturbed by the current state of the world, particularly as relates to the police brutality that has made victims of far too many people of color.

ICED(AI) is an international organization with members across the world, all seeking to ensure that the next stage in technological advancement serves the greater interests of our entire species. Our vision has always been a reality in which passionate engineers continue to develop cutting-edge innovations that make the world a better place.

That pursuit will be fruitless if it is not built on top of a fundamental and pervasive recognition that human rights are inalienable and must be extended equally to all. While we have always strived to promote inclusivity and to judge technological developments purely on their own merits, it is clear that this sort of passive behavior will not be sufficient to enact the type of change that the entire world is hurting so badly to see.

We can do better. The entire human race can do better.

To that end, ICED(AI) has committed to providing $100,000 worth of pro-bono consulting services to small businesses and individuals who have been directly or indirectly impacted by the continued discrimination and civil unrest in the United States and around the world. Whether you are launching your first startup, fine-tuning the parameters on a Machine Learning model, or simply considering getting into coding for the first time, we want to help. Our members hail from some of the world's most successful technology companies and would be honored to assist anyone who is brave enough to ask for help.

Please have any inquiries or comments directed to info@icedai.org.

We are all in this together.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Lloyd Danzig". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large loop at the end.

Lloyd Danzig
Chairman & Founder
International Consortium for the Ethical Development of Artificial Intelligence